(Channeling begins)

Djwhal Khul here. Tashi Delek.

And a very happy, peaceful Losar to all of our Tibetan friends, no matter where they be in the world and just the wishes of peace and the New Year with a much better outcome.

Alright. Our topic today is “Manifestation for the Enlightened”. What I want to discuss is the difference between manifesting at different levels of consciousness.

There's, everything is simple from "I have set this goal and I am going to have it by this date" to "I'm saving my money so I can buy a home" to "I've decided I want the ice cream cone so I am eating it now", that sort of thing.

In the way of enlightenment, manifestation takes a different form. It can be instantaneous. It often has lag time however. And basically whatever you keep focused on the mind is what will manifest.

If you are not aware of what the mind is focused upon, then you could get a surprise. If you are distracted, you usually get nothing or a much longer delay switch. So the idea is to train the mind to stay focused absolutely on what you do want.

Now this can be accompanied by a chant. So you might be walking through the neighborhood and your mantra is "health". Or you might be doing restorative yoga and your mantra is "peace". You could be doing a surgery and your mantra is "success". That sort of thing. So you can combine an activity with a specific repetition of the desired item.

In terms of money, an enlightened way to manifest more money is not by chanting "Money, money, money" although I have heard people say "Om money padme hum" instead of "mane" but whatever works for you in terms of how you bring it in is generally going to be more toward an increase of energy. Increase of wealth. Increase of power or responsibility. So your business may be growing and you are hiring more employees or you are moving into a bigger home so you need the extra cash flow or whatever it is.

So you think in terms of expansion: expanding your aura, expanding your consciousness, feeling very comfortable with that increase of whatever it is and that would be the way in which to work with money.

You can also invoke the colors gold and green into your aura. That is what we call the "money aura" that tends to lend more prosperity. The green is also creative and the gold is also healing. So it's a multiple purpose therapy.

Alright dear ones. As always, thank you and my love to you,

Djwhal Khul
