Djwhal Khul here. Tashi Delek. (Tash-ee Delay-k)

Alright. Our topic today is "May Day – Spring of Hope". Now this is a very interesting time period and I would encourage you to leap forward or spring forward with actions that are all based on hope: hope for a better world, hope to end hunger, hope to have a peaceful reality and a peaceful world. This is a time clearly to focus your hope and your choice.

Now if I could say nothing else, I would say that "hope" and "choice" might be the key words here. Many need to know there is still hope for something good.

There is hope for turnaround and then they can choose a better reality than the one that they are experiencing now. And even if all odds are against it, when you pool together your choices, in other words, like minds create great things together in a team effort.

So if you have the same desire perhaps as your neighbor, that you are hoping for peaceful planet or maybe you are just hoping for a quiet neighborhood at the moment (and I am going to expand on that a bit later). Whatever it is, band together with like-minded individuals.

Now I know that these days, a lot of that happens in chat rooms and by e-mail and sometimes by letter or just maybe joining an organization or making a donation or whatever it is that you do.

Take some sort of action that is clearly a hopeful springing forward, and, if you are able, take more than one action in that direction.

Also this is an important time period to share with others to keep their hopes up, to keep choosing. "I choose a better reality" or "I choose abundance" or "I choose good health" or "I choose..." whatever it is, just keep it coming.

And another practice just to take this a bit deeper for those of you who do energy work, or prayer work, is that when two or more are gathered in the name of Creation (now different religions put it in different terms, so you can substitute whatever word that you want that makes you more comfortable), basically it is saying there is one other human being that has the same desire and you can connect on some wavelength, that your co creative powers will far exceed the nay sayers or the negative thinkers. So this is a time for that positive energy of hope and free will choice.

May Day is classically a time to usher in that green fresh growth, you know, that energy, that potential, to take that sprout and turn it into a tall strong plant. So treat your hopes the same way and keep making choices in a direction that you want to go in.

I do appreciate those of you who share the information freely on the Internet and verbally with friends. Some of you print these out and give them to other people. Thank you so much for your willingness to share that. And perhaps that beautiful emerald green color would be a good one. Just close your eyes for a moment. Just think of that beautiful emerald green color and that harmony vibration and let that soak into your body.

All right dear ones. That is my Spirituality Article Information for this particular week.

Thank you,

Djwhal Khul
